EVALUATION QUESTIONNAIRE

(Copyright of Judie Nel, Gearchangers South Africa – used with permission)

About 2 500 years ago, Socrates said the most important thing in life was, “Know Thyself”.

This statement is just as important today as it was then. Most of us have the tendency to take ourselves for granted; and it’s tragic but true that the majority of people grow up and die without ever tapping the hidden powers of themselves.

- On the following pages are various categories of statements to help you gain insight into your deepest self.
- Whilst we will be working on the material in general in workshop context, your personal information will remain confidential and will only be disclose in your personal profile
- There are not right or wrong statements – just different ways seeing things.
- Be as honest as you can to gain an accurate picture of yourself

When you go to meet your Maker you will not be asked why you didn’t save the world or invent a cure for AIDS. You will only be asked why you didn’t become more fully YOU when you were given all the potential. Leo Buscaglia

On the following 2 pages there are 5 value categories and each category is worth a total of 10 points.

Within each category there are 7 statements.

Allocate the 10 points according to your estimated value of each statement.

Example:

> You may decide that statement 1 is worth 3 out of 10; statement 3 is worth 5 out of 10 and statement 6 is worth 2 out of 10.

The totals of 3, 5 and 2 indicate that you have allocated all 10 points in this particular category.

> On the other hand, you may decide that there is only one statement worth considering and allocate all 10 points there.

COLOURS:

On the following pages are a number of statements. Consider them and mark the relevant column in accordance with your level of agreement (cross or tick):

- 1 = no agreement / not me at all
 2 = some agreement / sometimes me
 3 = strong agreement / usually me

ONE

	1	2	3
1. I support the principle of "One for all, all for one".
2. My people (family, tribe, group or gang) are everything to me. I couldn't exist without them.
3. I feel better when I am given clear and definite directions on what to do.
4. I believe women and men should have defined social tasks – clear role tasks give direction in life.
5. There are certain groups that cause all the trouble.
6. I like to preserve traditions and customs. I like to observe seasonal festivals and to protect our close-knit group.
7. Our circle is strong as we work together and take care of our own in a dangerous world.
8. I believe in and make use of things like teacup readings, crystal balls, forecasting rituals.
9. I need just enough money to keep food on the table and to pay the rent.
10. I don't like change at all. I prefer keeping things as they are.

TWO

	1	2	3
1. I am a person that loves power, lives for the moment, likes to be respected for feats of strength, intelligence or daring conquest.
2. People respect me because I am tough.
3. Respect and reputation is of great importance. So you do what it takes to avoid being put down.
4. Threatening people is an effective way to get what you want.
5. Physical force is sometimes necessary.
6. I believe it is every person for his/herself
7. Right now is all there is, so I'll do what makes me feel good.
8. I absolutely insist on my right to be me.
9. I dislike having my authority questioned; what I say goes.
10. People who believe in fairness and justice don't know what the world is really like.

THREE

	1	2	3
1. I have a deep knowing that theological laws of nature apply throughout all universes, known and unknown.
2. The cosmic order of things and reality are revealed in my unitive, integrative thinking.
3. I am deeply connected to all humans by a universal spiritual bond that transcends colour, race and gender.
4. The negativity that I experience results from using creative forces negatively – the connectedness of cause and effect.
5. Reality can be experienced, but never known.
6. I practice a spirituality that is not necessarily related to a specific church or religion.
7. I have a thirst for spiritual integrative understanding and a passionate desire to contribute towards improvement of international conditions.
8. Healing has to do with re-aligning the energies of the body with cosmic truth.
9. I practise shifting to altered states of consciousness to be pro-active and restore my energy.
10. I sense the interconnectedness of evolution, nature, business and science in my contemplation of quantum laws of being.

FOUR

	1	2	3
1. I choose a job where loyalty earns greater job security and we are treated fairly.
2. I see myself as a person with strong moral convictions, patriotic, a true believer.
3. I prefer an organisation that treats everybody by the same rules and is committed to going by the book.
4. Pay and rewards should be determined by loyal service and obedience to authority.
5. An ideal world is a place where righteousness triumphs over evil and the faithful receive their just rewards.
6. I stand fast for what is right, proper and good; I follow appointed pathways.
7. You have to be extremely careful about germs and viruses. They cause illness. Cleanliness is next to Godliness
8. People should know their place.
9. When I'm sick I do what the doctor says.
10. I believe in right and wrong and good and evil. If you don't follow the rules, you will be punished.

FIVE

	1	2	3
1. I see the world as an integrated system driven by differences, moving from chaos to order, generating new differences in a continual process of change.
2. I believe in taking total responsibility for all that happens to me. All the things that are happening in my life is part of creating my reality. I am responsible for it all.
3. I thrive on paradoxes and uncertainties.
4. When chaos comes to order in the process of change, I believe it is necessary to shift the goalposts when necessary. What was right yesterday may not be right tomorrow.
5. I accept the paradox that both excessive structure and lack of principle frustrate me.
6. I enjoy living at the meeting point between known and unknown where creativity and innovation abounds.
7. Competition is not for me. I cannot be motivated by competing with others.
8. Being at the edge of inspiration and functionality is extremely important to me.
9. I have been called an eccentric. I have my own beliefs that are often counter to the main culture – I live in freedom making new choices as new circumstances deliver themselves.
10. I usually rely on my intuition and gut feelings when deciding on action required.

SIX

	1	2	3
1. I believe that we all brothers and sisters on this planet.
2. I often wonder about the meaning of life.
3. My emotional relationships are intensely involving.
4. I love animals, sometimes they seem like better friends than people do.
5. I believe that we have to stand together to protect the environment.
6. I will gladly go over to action to protest for what I feel is right, e.g. abuse of children, save the whales, river pollution, etc.
7. I believe there is much unfairness in the world and that I should work to correct it.
8. My life tasks are dedication to human causes that work to reduce hunger, ignorance, racism and violence.
9. The workplace should be non-competitive and built on consensual teamwork.
10. I sometimes help too much. Giving fish instead of teaching how to fish.

SEVEN

	1	2	3
1. Life is full of endless possibilities and opportunities for those willing to take some calculated risks.
2. First impressions are everything. You have to put your “best foot forward”.
3. Scientific evidence proves our ability to use nature to create a better life on earth.
4. If you’re going to see a doctor, pay and see the best.
5. I value material possessions and technology, and I want success.
6. Life is about competition. You have to be the best to get to the top.
7. I like to work very hard, as I want to reach my goals and get ahead in life.
8. I want to look my best. Having the best of everything proves my success.
9. I believe in progress. Free enterprise and commercial development should be encouraged at all costs.
10. We hold dominion over all things and must use natural resources to improve the bottom line results.
